

With Hurricane Isidore moving up through Louisiana, and a week before Hurricane Lili came in, the Beach Bash 2002 was blessed with beautiful weather. Several arrived early on Fri and spent some time on the beach, in the water, and on kayaks. As the masses arrived in the evening, groups headed out to dinner. After dinner, the tattoo parlor was opened, complete with neon TATTOO sign. There were many people tattooed in many places. This is always a great ice breaker / introduction party.

Saturday morning had Jerry Sadler preparing a gourmet breakfast for 40. Not a bad way to start off a beautiful morning. After breakfast, 8 people headed off to the high school for a couple of hours of tennis. Meanwhile, the volleyball net was set up for afternoon activities. We had a couple of teams attempting the water balloon toss over the volleyball net with sheets. It's hard to explain... you just had to be there. It was wild.

After a quick beer break, the real volleyball games started. We did pretty good for no-talent players. Everyone had fun and that's all that mattered.

Next, some headed back the water to cool down, while others got card and dominoes games going that seemed to last the rest of the weekend.

Just before dinner, we organized the (hopefully) first annual wet tshirt contest. We had 8 contestants. They were all winners – as were those that watched. The names are withheld to protect the “innocent”.

Gary and Sharon Sequeria proceeded to prepare the Cajun shrimp boil dinner and it was great as usual. Gary did not renew his relationship with Jose Cuervo until dinner was pretty much over.

After dinner came the best hula / Hawaiian costume contest. The 2 guys in hula skirts, Hawaiian shirts, coconut bras, and thongs were the hands down winners.

Again, the names are withheld to protect the “innocent”, as well as the names of the ladies that kept unwrapping the hula skirts. Honorable mention goes to the talents of Mary Kay Kitchens in her performance.

Most headed down to the beach to sit around the fire. Sex on the Beach was provided in ample supply to all interested.

Sunday morning saw some up early and leaving, while others didn't seem to want to get up at all. We closed down the last house at 4:00, leaving some of the card players still at it under the beach house.

Special thanks to:

- * Gary & Sharon Sequeria - Cajun Shrimp boil
- * Jerry Sadler – Gourmet breakfast
- * Susan Wicker – Sex on the Beach & Jello Shots
- * Steve Meyer - 2 kayaks
- * John Smith – Fire wood galore
- * Curtis Smith, Jennifer, Samantha Davidson, Neil Fruge – Just for making our group's average age drop.

- * Christine – Bringing the karaoke machine (even though we did not get around to using it)
- * Laura Irwin – Omelet preparation on Sunday
- * All the ladies that entered the wet tshirt contest.
- * Everyone that entered the hula contest
- * Everyone who helped with all the little things to keep things running smoothly with few complaints.
